KENDALL-BRUA.

At Wheeling, West Virginia, on Monday, November 13, 1899, Mr. Stuart Russell Kendall, of Altoona, and Miss Elizabeth May Brua, of Hollidaysburg, were united in the bonds of holy wedlock by Rev. M. H. Sooy pastor of First Methodist Episcopal church of that city. The groom, a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kendall, of Altoona, formerly of the Big Cove, holds an important position in Altoona in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The bride, an accomplished young lady, is a daughter of the late John Brua, a prominent farmer near Hollidaysburg.

The young couple have just gone to housekeeping at 1313 Sixteenth avenue, Altoona, and Russel says the latch string is out for any of his Fulton county friends.

The worthy young couple have the best wishes of the "News" for long, happy, and prosperous life.

ent-according to age, temperament, class, and condition. To the boy, it is to bring a new toy; to youth, new pleasures, and what it is to men and women depends on what they live for self, or others. The coming of 1900 means the end of life's journey to many. It means sadder things still to others in the way of moral failure, and character shipwreck. But to many more it will stand for a date and marking stone in life, representing recovery and perfect victory over the past, sin,the something for the world, or the race itself. To say that God cares for sparrows, and not for a nation-that He watches over an individual, but not over the world, -that He plans for one, and not for another, is to speak absurdly. If it were not for the fond remembrance of those dear to them, most men would let their personal birth-days pass by without a thought; but I suppose there are very few who are not more or less impressed by the birth-day of the new year, with its change of date for all the earth. The impulse to turn over a fresh leaf is so old fashioned that advanced folks sneer at it as childish. But it is a good impulse, nevertheless. It is well to pause at the New By the old method the State Year mile-stone-to put down the pack of good and bad experiences wrongs, as well as its pleasures.
